Biography for: Jonathan Lewis

Jonathan Lewis is a London-based photographer who received his BA in Art History from Cambridge University in 1993 and a Certificate in Professional Photographic Practice from the London College of Printing in 1997.

Lewis work explores ideas of production and consumption in a playful manner, as in See Candy, which samples scans of candy wrappers to produce barcode-like patterns that amuse the eye and rouse the memory. The sensibility on display has been described as strangely entrancing, evoking a Mr. Magoo kind of world, while his prints are joyful visual confections.

Lewis work is represented in the Victoria and Albert Museum, London, the George Eastman House, Rochester, NY, and Cleveland Institute of Art, and SociFranise de Photographie, Paris.
